

the Scarlet

Scarlet by name, green by nature

From day one, brick-by-sustainable-brick, the Scarlet Hotel had its impeccable eco-credentials firmly built-in. The hotel opened in September 2009, on a spectacular cliff top site, overlooking Mawgan Porth beach.

The Scarlet is an eco luxury escape for grown ups and embraces its stunning location both indoors and out, reflecting its natural environs through the sensuous use of materials and sympathetic interior design, all in keeping with the Scarlet's eco-friendly promise. Day-to-day, the hotel does everything it can to minimise its impact on the environment with the thoughtful employment of a biomass boiler, grey water recycling, rain water harvesting, natural air-con and sea thrift planted roofs.

Yet, whilst sticking to its worthy intentions, the Scarlet sacrifices nothing in the way of luxury throughout its public rooms and 37 stunningly appointed bedrooms and suites, featuring free standing baths, walk-in showers, ocean sea views, private gardens or private rooftop pods.

The hotel offers all kinds of relaxing diversions, including outdoor log fired hot tubs, a natural reed-bed swimming pool and an Ayurvedic inspired spa. The Scarlet spa is unlike any other. In fact, we hesitated about calling it a spa at all. A world away from current beauty offerings and promises of everlasting youth, it is about wellbeing and you: embracing life with a smile.

Importantly, the Scarlet is a 'grown-ups only' hotel. "This is Cornwall's ideal escape for adults, a chance to recharge batteries and getaway from the everyday," says General Manager, Nikki Broom. "Just a simple stroll through the landscaped gardens and down to the beach, breathing in the freshest sea air, does wonders for both body and soul."

Acclaimed chef Ben Tunnicliffe, heads up the 80 cover restaurant serving breakfast, lunch and dinner, using locally sourced home-grown produce. Alfresco dining takes place on the roof terrace overlooking the Atlantic Ocean in the warmer months.

Rates are from £190 per room based on 2 people sharing, including breakfast and tax.
